

CanvasM, a joint venture between Tech Mahindra and Motorola Inc, has launched a contest for 13 engineering colleges in the country. The contest is aimed at promoting free thinking and creativity among the youth so that they can express their ideas and commercialise them, if feasible.

“InnoVAS Innovators Contest 2009-10” is a web-based competition where students are expected to share their ideas and if their ideas are selected they will earn cash rewards or an internship with CanvasM.

Students from 13 colleges including Amity School of Engineering and Technology, G. B. Pant Engineering College, GIT College of Engineering, Bangalore Institute of Technology and others will take part in the contest.